DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's argument with respect to claim 18 has been considered but is not persuasive.

Shiragaki disclosed choosing the path of routing as based on the need to change wavelengths, see below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claim 16 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Shiragaki US 5,457,556 (Shiragaki).

Re claim(s) 16

Shiragaki disclosed: "A computer program", "computer readable medium" or "code for controlling operations"(col./line: 11/30-50).

code for controlling operations of a first (Figure 5, 13 - left), a second (Figure 5, 13 - right), and a third (Figure 5 #10) fabric and k wavelength interchangers (Figure 5, 55) of the WDM cross-connect device, the code determining whether or not a demand requires a change in wavelength, wherein if the code determined that a demand requires a change in wavelength, the code causes the demand to be routed through the first fabric, through at least one of said k wavelength interchange and through said second fabric, and thru the fabric if no change is necessary.

Shiragaki does not disclose wherein the controller is coupled to said first, second fabrics and to said at least one wavelength interchanger, the controller being configured to execute a routing algorithm that causes a demand that requires a change of wavelength to be routed through at least one of said at least one wavelength interchanger. The controller for illustration purposes is only shown in Figures 2 and 11, however it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to attach the controller to the corresponding components in Figure 5 so that the network would be able to modify routes and switch signals in the network as is commonly practiced. Furthermore, Shiragaki does not show a single pass-through third switch fabric (10) but two such fabrics. However, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of invention to integrate the two switches into a single switch to simplify architecture control. Making parts separable is not patentable over the prior art.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 1-15 are allowed.

Art Unit: 2633

5. Claims 17 and 18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
